Pollution is a big problem that our environment is suffering from. This latter has three major types: air, water and land.

First: Air pollution, it happens because of deforestation, factories and mean of transport smokes and fumes and it affects people's health. Air pollution causes allergies, lung cancer and many other respiratory problems. To avoid these problems, governments must make factories cure the gazes and smokes before they are released in the air, also we should plants trees and stop deforestation.

Secondly: Water pollution which is the contamination of seas, rivers and oceans by released industrial chemical wastes from factories and ships oils. This type of pollution causes the death of fishes, some sea birds and makes the water that we dink toxic which can cause diseases like Malaria. So to reduce this type of pollution, factories and ships must pay taxes for released chemical wastes in water bodies.

Thirdly: Land pollution, this type is due to the garbage, land-fills and pesticides used by farmers on soil which makes the land sterile and it make the cities views dirty and ugly. To prevent this, farmers must reduce using pesticides in farming and people should try to recycle and reuse some of their household wastes and garbage like plastic, glass and paper.

To conclude, we can say that all living things on planet earth are in danger whether it is the human being, plants or animals. But still there is hope to help our glob.:
